Ashtabula County Project Design and Description

Ashtabula County CSEA/Ashtabula County Job & Family Services will contract with the Ashtabula County Technical & Career Center (A-Tech) to carry out direct services to participants.

Project Purpose: To educate teens and young adults about the legal, financial, and emotional responsibilities of parenting through peer to peer educators; to motivate teens and young adults to postpone parenthood until they have followed the “success sequence” to complete their education, start a career, and enter a committed relationship; to empower young parents with non-marital births by informing and providing resources and opportunities to them that will assist in achieving economic stability, gain a meaningful work experience and learn how to successfully co-parent; to work with those in Cohort 1 for peer learning opportunities.

Proposed Services: ATECH will provide direct services to participants, employ the program manager, plan and implement the program, and provide outreach and sustainability activities related to postponing parenthood. The “No Kidding Ohio” program will be used at both sites and will be revised and enhanced during the planning year to leverage Child Support program expertise. Funding will be used to develop creative and innovative approaches to educate the participants and encourage them to follow the “success sequence” to become self-sufficient adults.

Population Group to be Served: Teens and young adults, ages 13 to 25 who have barriers in following the “success sequence” and who are striving for economic mobility; those who are not parents yet; and parenting teens and young adults facing barriers rising out of poverty.

Project Description:

Overview

The program engages young parents as peer educators to teach other teens and young adults about the rights and responsibilities of being a young parent through their own real-life stories. ATECH will work with CSEAs to carry out direct services to participants.

Geographic Location

Ashtabula is the northeastern most county in Ohio with a population of nearly 98,000.¹ Us Census Bureau, 2019

A-Tech will utilize the community and agency relationships that they developed during the 19 years of operating the WIA/WIOA and TANF-funded youth OPPORTUNITIES! Program which serves 14 to 24-year-old youth throughout Ashtabula County.

A-TECH/yO! program will utilize the No Kidding Curriculum: Straight Talk from Teen Parents Curriculum when training the Peer Educators/Trainers and when presenting the program to youth.

A-Tech/yO! will recruit and train Peer Educators/Trainers from the currently trained Peer Navigators in the yO! Program, from the county’s LEADERShip Ashtabula Program, and referrals by other Partner Agencies/Organizations. Peer Trainers will be recruited from the same communities from which the students/participants are being served.

There are six (6) middle schools, six (6) high schools and one (1) career-tech center in the county along with one private K-12 school.

By contracting with the Ashtabula County Technical & Career Center, their relationship with the six (6) school districts will be utilized to promote the program. Peer Trainers will also be recruited from A-Tech's student body, who are, in turn, students at each of the six (6) home school districts.

A-Tech's WIOA and TANF-funded youth OPPORTUNITIES! Program (yO!) will also be utilized for recruiting Peer Trainers as well as program participants. yO!'s relationships with school district's and many county agencies and organizations will also be beneficial in disseminating program information, recruiting participants and locating sites for educational programming.

Teachers, school guidance counselors and administrators will be given materials and asked to assist with program promotion and participant referrals with the emphasis on middle and high school students to address topics prior to them becoming an issue. This is the same target population for the WIOA/TANF-funded yO! program.

Additionally, the yO! Program operates a county-wide TANF-funded Summer Employment Program which traditionally reaches 100 – 300 fourteen (14) to fifteen (15) year-old students for an intensive ten-week program that consists of soft-skills training, financial literacy, career exploration as well as an on-the-job work experience. This group would also greatly benefit from exposure to the NKO Curriculum.

It is anticipated that 10-20 students per grade level per school district will be served over the three years of the grant. These and the youth in the yO! Program will form the largest portion of those to be trained. In addition to these, we intend to reach out to community church youth groups through the Ashtabula County Ministerial Association. The Ashtabula County Juvenile Court Youth Division is also interested in promoting the program and working to recruit and refer from within its ranks.

All program participants will also be provided with information on a variety of youth-oriented services in the county, including the WIOA/TANF funded youth OPPORTUNITIES! (yO!) Program which would provide them with opportunity to access support services to help them successfully graduate and work-related training and experiences to help them become successful adults.

Project Sustainability

Ashtabula County intends to maintain its partnership with the youth OPPORTUNITIES! (yO!) Program or its successor CCMEP Program should it lose funding. This partnership will provide ongoing access to new program participants as well as new Peer Trainers.

Ashtabula County Project Design and Description

Ashtabula County Job & Family Services is a potential funder using PRC and TANF funding and a proposal would be submitted for those funds at the appropriate time.

Ashtabula County also has two active foundations: the Ashtabula Foundation and the Robert S. Morrison Foundation. Both foundations are always eager to assist with funding of endeavors that provide services that will enhance the future of county citizens and the future viability of the county.

Dissemination Plan

One of our goals/objectives would be to provide program information to others/stakeholders in the county that have a mission to serve the same target group of youth and young adults in order to gain community support and to promote the program.

One of the first duties of the Project Director and the Community Coordinator will be to identify those forums which will reach the greatest number of stakeholders in the timeliest fashion. For example, in Ashtabula County there is:

1. a quarterly meeting of the Family and Children First Council Advisory Committee where thirty county agencies, schools and entities are represented.
2. a quarterly meeting of the Ashtabula County Ministerial Association where all sections of the county are represented.
3. a monthly forum coordinated around trauma-informed care that has over one-hundred active participants from a wide variety of social, governmental and ministerial entities.
4. a monthly meeting of county superintendents as well as a quarterly meeting of guidance counselors.

Once the initial marketing materials are developed, these and old-fashioned feet-on-the-street face-to-face meetings can be utilized to disseminate information on the goals and the long-term benefits of the program to their respective communities.

Third Party Agreements

Ashtabula County Job & Family Services (ACJFS) will (need to) contract with the Ashtabula County Technical & Career Center (A-Tech) to offer the full-range of services related to the program. A-Tech, in turn, will subcontract where appropriate to offer transportation services or other purchased services required for the program.

Using Excerpts from ODJFS description for Charting a Course for Economic Mobility and Responsible Parenting-Cohort 2:

Project Purpose: To educate teens and young adults about the legal, financial, and emotional responsibilities of parenting through peer to peer educators; to motivate teens and young adults to postpone parenthood until they have followed the “success sequence” to complete their education, start a career, and enter a committed relationship; to empower young parents with non-marital births by informing and providing resources and opportunities to them that will assist in achieving economic stability, gain a meaningful work experience and learn how to successfully co-parent; to work with those in Cohort 1 for peer learning opportunities.

Proposed Services: ATECH will provide direct services to participants, employ the program manager, plan and implement the program, and provide outreach and sustainability activities related to postponing parenthood. The “No Kidding Ohio” program will be used at both sites and will be revised and enhanced during the planning year to leverage Child Support program expertise. Funding will be used to develop creative and innovative approaches to educate the participants and encourage them to follow the “success sequence” to become self-sufficient adults.

Population Group to be Served: Teens and young adults, ages 13 to 25 who have barriers in following the “success sequence” and who are striving for economic mobility; those who are not parents yet; and parenting teens and young adults facing barriers rising out of poverty.

Project Description

Overview

The program engages young parents as peer educators to teach other teens and young adults about the rights and responsibilities of being a young parent through their own real-life stories.

ATECH will work with the CSEAs and OCS to carry out direct services to participants:

Geographic Location

Ashtabula is the northeastern most county in Ohio with a population of nearly 98,000.¹ US Census Bureau, 2019

Need for Assistance

Ashtabula County has a significant need for a program to promote the “success sequence” (completing an education, starting a career, and entering a committed relationship prior to child-bearing) among teens and young adults in Ashtabula County. The target population is teens and young adults, ages 13 to 25, likely to experience barriers in following the “success sequence”, and who are striving for economic mobility. There will be peer-to-peer educators who will provide the training to participants. These peer educators will be young parents who are working with their community partners and will gain education and experience through this peer education program.

The Ashtabula County poverty rate is 20.3% and ranks as the 8th highest poverty rate in Ohio. About 3,424 Ashtabula households (9.1%) subsist on less than $10,000 a year. At best, those households have $28 per day for housing, food, transportation, clothing, schooling, and other necessities. Another 5,048 households (13.4%) live on less than $20,000 annually. Nearly 3,500 families with children in Ashtabula County are impoverished, with over 45% of these families living in single-parent households.

In Ashtabula County many children's families live in subsidized and/or substandard housing. Educational attainment levels in the county are aligned with the severe statistics. More than 14% of adults in Ashtabula County age 25-years and older (9,608 people) do not have a high school diploma. Only 9.2% of the county residents have a bachelor's degree or higher; this rate is more than 26% in Ohio and nearly 30% in the nation.⁷ There are few opportunities in the county for students to spend their out-of-school time constructively. Unfortunately, of the few that do exist, most require investments of dollars and most of the families cannot afford access.

Over the last several years, drug use has plagued the area. The community has lost many members to overdoses and many are incarcerated on drug-related charges. Numerous children have been personally impacted by the scourge of drugs. For instance, Ashtabula County has 504 child support cases where children are living with grandparents or another caretaker.⁸

⁷ Ohio County Profiles

⁸ State Office of Child Support, COGNOS Report, November 2020

Providing this education early is a proactive approach to providing teens and young adults with the knowledge they need, to make informed decisions related to parenting, and delaying parenting until they are emotionally, socially and financially ready to start a family. ATECH has well established relationships with partners in their community who support the No Kidding Ohio curriculum. Many young parents do not know the legal, financial and emotional implications of unwed parenthood; understand the importance of establishing legal paternity; and understand the child support system. These complex issues can be challenging for any age to understand, however teen parents often are left to learn on their own and the lack of knowledge and resources can lead to stressful situations that have serious negative consequences to both the parent, and the child.

Objectives

There are three main objectives for this project:

Objective 1: Provide Success Sequence Training to Teens and Young Adults

By leveraging the child support's expertise and collaborating with community partners for the implementation of the NKO curriculum, teens and young adults will be connected to existing community programs. They will be guided towards following the "success sequence" described in the training to complete their education, start a career, and enter a committed relationship so they are financially, legally and emotionally ready when they become a parent. Becoming a young parent is a life-altering experience for the entire family unit and this program will prepare youth with how to prepare for the unexpected and to know their rights and responsibilities. They will plan a personal course for responsible parenting, which includes healthy relationships, increased economic mobility and informed engagement with the child support program.

Objective 2: Provide Opportunity and Experience to Peer Trainers

Peer trainers who are already young parents will learn about the child support program in a manner that will not only benefit in implementing the NKO curriculum, but it will also assist them in being more capable of understanding their own rights and responsibilities to benefit their own child(ren). The education and experience will be the basis for the program to be implemented as the NKO curriculum is designed to assist with strengthening families in local communities. This grant project opportunity will provide Ohio teens and young adults with the tools they need so they are more likely to become self-sufficient adults and less likely to live in poverty. This project will also provide opportunities for young parents with non-marital births a path forward in achieving economic stability, learning how to co-parent and to become informed about paternity establishment and Ohio's child support services. NKO empowers young parents to become productive adults and positive role models for their peers.

Once peer trainers are selected and hired, they will receive training in their position to acquire new knowledge, skills, attitudes, and behaviors that will help prepare them for success in their education while gaining work experience. They will learn about the child support program, paternity, gain work and life skills such as public speaking and storytelling, professional conduct skills, and will be connected with their community to build a bond that promotes healthy relationships, and positive social and emotional development as young parents. These individuals will be connected with community partners to assist in employment opportunities and furthering their education.

Objective 3: Refine Curriculum and Provide Outreach Opportunities

NKO was developed by the ODJFS Offices of Child Support and Workforce Development and incorporates the collaboration of cross-functional state and county agencies including Child Support Enforcement, Children Services, Workforce Development, as well as other public and/or private community agencies and stakeholders working together with the same common goal. The NKO Curriculum was designed to assist with the strengthening of fatherhood and families in local communities. Research also indicates that the presence of fathers, including non-residential fathers, holds tremendous potential to improve outcomes for children. Children with involved fathers enjoy more positive outcomes in many domains, including self-esteem, school performance, and social development¹⁰.

10 National Fatherhood Initiative, The Father Factor: How Father Absence Affects Our Youth

NKO is a powerful peer-to-peer approach that provides youth with practical knowledge and education about the legal, financial, and emotional realities of teen parenting. With this knowledge, teens can make informed decisions related to parenting and commitment, and delay parenting until they are emotionally and financially ready to have a family. The curriculum is delivered by peer educators who can talk firsthand to the challenges they have experienced as a teen parent.

Funds will allow ATECH to increase dissemination of the program; to motivate more teens and young adults throughout the state to follow the “success sequence” and as a result will obtain a better understanding of the legal, financial and emotional responsibilities of parenting; and become economically self-sufficient adults. It will also benefit peer trainers that are parents in the same age range as the trainees by providing them with paid work experience where they will gain leadership and job skills, build social networks, receive education and mentorship opportunities, and make a positive difference with their peers.

Providing outreach and education is a critical component for the success of NKO. Peer Educators will assist in the creation and distribution of marketing materials. The county will work with similar programs throughout Ohio on digital marketing campaigns to increase awareness of the program in both Cohort 1 and Cohort 2. These campaigns may include podcasts, social media posts, and information posted to websites. Delivering NKO in multiple digital avenues will make a more lasting impression, provide broader access to the curriculum across the state and allow for sustainability of the program after the grant project ends.

The NKO curriculum is a three-session program design:

Session 1: “Telling Our Stories”:

Students will learn about the challenges faced with becoming a young parent; they will hear stories from peers about what their experiences are as a young parent; they will be able to reflect on how their own life would be impacted by having a child at a young age; and they will learn how to identify ideal conditions to have in place prior to become a parent;

Session 2 “Understanding Parenting”:

Students will learn the differences between a biological father, a legal father and a dad; they will learn about the legal complications that exist when a child is born to unwed parents; the three ways to establish paternity and how to legally become a father; and they will learn about the legal benefits for the father, mother and child in legally establishing paternity.

Session 3: “Child Support and Money Matters”

Students will learn about the services offered by the CSEA; the costs and services that parents need to raise a child; the financial burden that a teen parent will face versus a non-parenting teen; and facts about child support and the importance of having two parents support a child.

Approach

The following describes the proposed program activities in Ashtabula County that will support teens and young adults to gain knowledge, skills, and access to resources that will likely lead them to a successful pursuit of making and achieving life goal.

Program Delivery

The program has two targeted service populations, the students who will receive the parenthood messaging and the trained peer educators. The students will hear messages about paternity and parenting from someone who knows the challenges firsthand and speaks to them in a way they can relate with their own experience. The trained peer educators who are young parents themselves, will gain experience in community service employment and build professional skills in communication, teamwork, public speaking and problem solving. In addition, young parents often become isolated from their peers and lose the relationships they previously had. This provides them an opportunity to form new relationships with peers in their community who they can relate to and share common challenges and successes with. Within these two targeted populations, there are sub-populations.

Ashtabula County program

The Ashtabula County program will target teens and young adults between the ages of 14-24 who are striving for economic mobility and have encountered barriers in following the “success sequence” (completing an education, starting a career, and entering a committed relationship prior to child-bearing), those who are not parents yet and parents who are working with the Workforce Development program. They will target both male and female young adults with special emphasis on those still in secondary school, for both the “student” population as well as the Peer Educators. Youth will be reached through school systems, county social service agencies and local ministerial groups. These potential recruiting partners and actual program sites will include: Ashtabula Area City Schools, Conneaut Area City Schools, Geneva Area City Schools, Grand Valley Local School District, Jefferson Area Local School District, Pymatuning Valley Local School District as well as Ashtabula County Children Services, Ashtabula County Job & Family Services, Ashtabula County Ministerial Association, Ashtabula County Community Action Agency-Head Start and 211 Programs, Ashtabula County Education Service Center, After-School Discovery Program, Catholic Charities of Ashtabula County, Kent State University-Ashtabula Campus, Ashtabula County Juvenile Court and LEADERShip Ashtabula.

Ashtabula County also intends to include the county’s libraries in their recruiting efforts, through their newsletters and community outreach activities as well as using them as potential training sites. Libraries, especially those in Ashtabula County, are extremely open to and interested in offering programs that lead to the general betterment of the community. Libraries in the county that they plan to partner with for this endeavor include: Andover Public Library, Ashtabula County District Library, Conneaut Public Library, Geneva Public Library, Grand Valley Public Library, Henderson Memorial Public Library, Kingsville Public Library and Rock Creek Public Library.

Other potential partners in developing and delivering a quality program will include the United Way of Ashtabula County, the Country Neighbor Program (Orwell and Andover locations), Ohio Means Jobs, Signature Health and Community Counseling Center. These agencies would serve as both potential recruitment resources as well as assisting with promotional activities in the community.

The Ashtabula County Technical & Career Center (A-Tech) will serve as the main service provider that will deliver the program and the NKO curriculum under a contract with Ashtabula County Job & Family Services (JFS). In turn, A-Tech will utilize the services and resources that exist through its current CCMEP and “youthOPPORTUNITIES! Program” (yO!). The yO! Program has been successful in serving young adults in Ashtabula County since 2002. The yO! started as an opportunity through the Workforce Investment Act (WIA) that funded youth programming in 2002, they now serve youth ages 14 to 24 by utilizing funding from both the WIOA program as well as TANF. During its 19-year tenure, yO! has developed a strong foundation in the community with networking capabilities and robust relationships with the agencies and programs listed above.

The yO! Program, as a part of its core holistic approach to serving youth, has utilized trained Peer Navigators to assist yO! staff to “reach” their peers in the community and within the program. They are a youth-centered program that truly believes that leadership needs to be fostered in and modeled by the young people in the program. In the beginning phase, yO! will identify and train Peer Navigators who would be interested in being Peer Educators.

This core group of six to ten young people will then serve as both Peer Educators to participants within the yO! Program (a potential audience of nearly 700 young people to draw from) as well as recruiters and train-the-trainers for subsequent Peer Educator teams.

The project's Community Coordinator will assist the Peer Educators in developing marketing materials that will be distributed to the community partners. Materials will be distributed via print and digital/social media with follow-up calls made to reach out to potential training groups and meetings will be scheduled to further promote the program. Once groups are established for programming every effort will be made to conduct at least one class per month. Ideally, once momentum is gained and enough Peer Educators are trained and on-board, a class could be held every three weeks.

As the project unfolds, continual efforts will be made to include as many partners as possible so that no group, sub-group or population misses the opportunity to participate in programming. Long-term sustainability will be explored from day one of the project, a primary potential source of funding would be Ashtabula County JFS TANF funding. The Ashtabula County Juvenile Court System is another potential source of financial support, as well as two local foundations: the Ashtabula Foundation and the Robert S. Morrison Foundation. The juvenile court system can provide referrals and a comprehensive set of services to an overlapping group of youth. The foundations support the yO! program through generous grants to provide desks, tables, educational equipment, laptops, a kitchen makeover and even a 2019 Dodge Caravan. They also fund the food pantry where youth can get food and a hot meal every day. These foundations are always supportive of projects that are aimed at improving the lives of young people in the county by educating them in decision making and life-enhancing opportunities for the betterment of the community.
